Transverse oval gem with trapezoid section, edge diagonally cut, both faces flat. The obverse is polished, the reverse matt. Broken.

A: On the left, smaller standing nude figure to right, holding a spear in his right hand, left hand behind his back. Above the figure, a six-pointed star. In the centre, Isis with calathus on her head, wearing a tunic and a mantle, in her right hand a standard with a falcon. Next to her head, a sixpointed star. Isis faces Sarapis, who is seated on a throne, crowned with the calathus, right hand extended over Cerberus. The three-headed Cerberus is represented to front between Isis and Sarapis.

Inscription in two lines above and below the figures:  $\varepsilon \iota \sigma \zeta \varepsilon \upsilon [\sigma] \sigma [\ldots] \rightarrow \varepsilon \iota \zeta \varepsilon \upsilon [\varsigma] \Sigma [\alpha \rho \alpha \pi \iota \varsigma]$ . 'Zeus and Sarapis are the same.'

B: Plain.

(Description: Chiara Ciampi – CBd. Alterations from A. Mastrocinque in SGG are based on close observation of the gem by Chiara Ciampi and A. M. Nagy, 2015-2016).
